Secondary Citation

Sometimes you need to cite the ideas of an author that were referred to in someone else’s writing, though, where possible, you should try to read the original source. You must show that you used the secondary source.

e.g.