Television / Radio Programme

Treat both Television and Radio programmes exactly the same

This is the essential information and order you need (Citation order).

• Title of programme (in italics)
• Year of transmission (in round brackets)
• Name of Channel
• Date of transmission (day/month)

It should look like this example:

Day of the Triffids (1981) BBC 1 Television, 10th September.

This will look like this in a body of work:

Reading enables you to go deeper into your understanding of your research books are an integral part of this¹

By doing a literature review it shows that you have understood your reading and the breadth and depth of your research on a given topic.

Make sure you include everything as using someone’s else’s ideas and using them as your own is as much plagiarism as direct quotes so remember to reference!

Bibliography/Reading list

Day of the Triffids (1981) BBC 1 Television, 10th September.

¹ Day of the Triffids, (1981).

Make sure you place your numbers correctly.

Make sure it is in you Bibliography in alphabetical order.

Your footnote should look like this for a broadcast.